

ANDREW MOORE.

JANUARY 16, 1832.

Mr. WHITTLESEY, from the Committee of Claims, made the following

REPORT:

The Committee of Claims, to whom was referred the petition of Andrew Moore, report:

That it is proven by the deposition of Robert Edmonston, late a captain in the Tennessee volunteers, mounted gunmen in General Coffee's brigade, that Andrew Moore was a private in his company, and that he lost his horse on the 8th of November, 1814, near fort Montgomery, in the military service, for the want of forage, the United States having failed to furnish it. He says the horse was worth seventy dollars. The petitioner states, in his affidavit, that he has not received any compensation for, or in lieu of his horse. The papers were sent to the Third Auditor for information, and he states that the rolls do not furnish any evidence that this or any other horse died in that service, but that Andrew Moore was a member of Captain Edmonston's company, and that he served from the 28th of September, 1814, to the 5th of May, 1815, do appear from the rolls. The committee think the petitioner is entitled to relief, and report a bill.
